

We know that the readers of HRO Today Global magazine turn to us as the go-to resource in the industry—a resource that delivers trends, insights, and the top resources for all of their human resources operations and service needs. In this year's Resource Guide, we showcase providers and product vendors across 14 sectors of HR services.

Here you will find providers of everything from recruitment process outsourcing (RPO) to benefits administration to multiprocess HRO, not to mention a treasure trove of HR technology, consulting services, and other ancillary products. We hope that our 2017 Resource Guide will serve you well as a starting point in your search for an appropriate vendor. If you have a company you would like to add to the list, please email Belinda.Sharr@SharedXpertise.com.

Benefits Consulting

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW:

Global companies may require benefits consulting as they grow in countries that have vastly differing views on benefits packages. This category includes benefits programme design, cost containment, enrollment, actuarial analysis, and full-service benefits administration—all core contributions of benefits consulting providers. Other areas of focus include healthcare strategy and plans, retirement plan design, life insurance, long-term and disability selection, employee behaviour assessment, and benchmarking.

HRIS & Web-Based Services

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW:

A human resource information system (HRIS) combines the effort of HR with information technology to create HR software. SaaS-based, cloud technologies provide platforms for strategic operational enhancements that can generate efficiencies whilst leveraging newfound flexibility and capabilities. Cloud-based solutions can lower costs and improve an organisation's bottom line. New HR software tools have the following characteristics, according to Deloitte Consulting's Human Capital Trends for 2017 Report: enabling easy progress tracking, providing continuous feedback and information, deploying data/analytics, and offering easy integration.

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW:

A human resource information system (HRIS) combines the effort of HR with information technology to create HR software. SaaS-based, cloud technologies provide platforms for strategic operational enhancements that can generate efficiencies whilst leveraging newfound flexibility and capabilities. Cloud-based solutions can lower costs and improve an organisation's bottom line. New HR software tools have the following characteristics, according to Deloitte Consulting's Human Capital Trends for 2017 Report: enabling easy progress tracking, providing continuous feedback and information, deploying data/analytics, and offering easy integration.

Incentives and Recognition

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW:

Recognition has a solid place in organisations—89 per cent of companies have recognition and rewards programmes, and 67 per cent of organisations offer between three and six different types, with 4.6 as the average number, according to WorldatWork's 2015 Trends in Employee Recognition report. The top five global recognition programme types have remained the same since 2013: length of service, above-and-beyond performance, programmes to motivate specific behaviours, peer-to-peer recognition, and retirement.
