Culture Eats AI for Breakfast | The Cost of Misalignment: How Hidden HR Disconnects Cost Organizations Talent, Trust, and Results | From Hierarchy to Fluid Talent Models: Designing the Organization of the Future | Research from Dr. Peter Cappelli, Director, Wharton Center for Human Resources | From Insights to Foresight: Using Predictive Data to Inform Executive Decisions | The 5Ls The Gift of a Balanced Life: Your Pathway To Personal And Professional Success | Re-imagining the Employee Value Proposition

We'll be keeping an eye on these three trends in 2026:

TREND ONE: Job Hugging Creates Hidden Talent Stagnation A stagnant job market is fueling “job hugging,” where employees stay for security even if they're disengaged. This creates talent bottlenecks and masks deeper morale issues, especially among high performers who feel stuck. HR will need to reopen mobility pathways and re-energize stalled teams.

TREND TWO: Burnout Evolves Into “Quiet Cracking” The best employers will make work less chaotic and provide comprehensive well-being support for employees. “Wellness and mental health have become instrumental in attracting and retaining the new workforce, and employee burnout has become a central focus of that. Early career employees have different needs, goals, and challenges than someone who is midway through their career, and employers must offer individualized, flexible programs.

TREND THREE: Growth From Within Becomes the New Retention Strategy Values-based leadership will become a key differentiator in organizational efforts to recruit and retain talent. Employee retention is a relationship—and the key to any relationship involves trust, mutual respect, and aligned values. Here are some ways that HR can cultivate values-based decision-making across their organizations.

Industry Deep Dives:

- Leader and Manager Development – 75% of HR leaders say their managers are overwhelmed by the growth of their job responsibilities. Investing in traditional manager development programs alone is not enough. Top organizations are evolving the job itself.
- Organizational Culture – 41% of HR leaders say employees' connection to culture is compromised by hybrid work. For culture to succeed in a hybrid world, leaders must work intentionally to align and connect employees to it.
- HR Technology – 56% of HR leaders confirmed their HR technology solutions and strategy do not match their current and future business needs, such as digital transformation. HR technology leaders are uncertain about which technologies to adopt. Evaluate the impact and adoption of emerging HR technology.
- Career Management and Internal Mobility – 89% of HR leaders believe career paths at their organizations are unclear for many employees. Traditional career maps don't work. Design adaptive career paths to offer career-option experience.
